Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?

Annual salary $35,000–$125,000+

Job summary Freelance court reporters are hired by attorneys to report depositions or other legal proceedings of potential trial witnesses. They provide stenographic reporting of depositions in litigation cases, such as medical, civil, intellectual property, patent, antitrust, large financial institutions, and environmental. Many freelance court reporters are independent contractors.

Education Graduation from a court reporting and captioning program.

Interested in pursuing a career?