Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.

Certified Reporter Instructor (CRI)

The Certified Reporting Instructor (CRI) recognizes teachers of court reporting who have developed the necessary skills to encourage excellence in educational programs that prepare tomorrow's court reporters. CRIs are educators, administrators, and reporters, who are NCRA Associate members and have attended an NCRA Council on Approved Student Education-sponsored, 13-hour session designed to expand their level of knowledge for becoming more effective realtime reporting instructors. CRIs are knowledgeable about the learning process, development of course syllabi and lesson plans, and are able to interact through role play of various courtroom scenarios.